Italian Miners Kill Three in a Riot—Huntington Girl Kills Herself Over a Love Affair—A Murderer Confesses and Commits Suicide—A Paris, Ky., Merchant Arrested for Killing His Clerk.

By Telegram to THE TIMES. — Timothy Bums, a New York tramp, was cut six times in the heart by Ernest Myers, another tramp. Marshal Stanley shot a man twice before facing he was not Myers, but Fritz Morelock. Myers was captured soon afterwards. Bums cannot live. Morelock is in critical condition. The trouble arose over possession of a freight car as a sleeping place.

TROUBLE WITH THE DAGOS.

They Attack New Miners and Fatally Stab Three and Injure Others.

By Telegram to THE TIMES. — HAZELTON, Pa., Sept. 14.—Discharged Italian miners at the mines last night assaulted the new men. Tate Lashaw, Andrew Hoespender and Charles Jades were fatally stabbed, and others injured. Intense excitement.

A LOVE AFFAIR

Causes a Huntingdon, (W. Va.) Girl to Fire a Bullet Through Her Breast.

By Telegram to THE TIMES. — HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 14.—Miss Mary Drainier fired a bullet through her left breast and is now dying. A love affair caused the rash act.

Confessed and Then Killed Himself.

By Telegram to THE TIMES. — DAYTON, O., Sept. 14.—Wesley Boyd, the confessed murderer of Mrs. Elizabeth J. Burns, committed suicide today by hanging himself in his cell. The funeral of his victim took place a few hours before his suicide.

Killed His Clerk.

By Telegram to THE TIMES. — PARIS, Ky., Sept. 14.—B. H. Coyle, merchant of this city, was arrested this morning, charged with murdering Olivia Hall. A letter said to have been written by Coyle, threatened the girl's life if she married Henry Smith. Miss Hall was clerk in Coyle's store.

Battling Things.

Work on the new Tremper shoe factory has been pushed along quite rapidly the last few days. The walls are now up and the structure will be under roof in a few days. The machinery will arrive next week, and the new factory will be making shoes within three weeks.

Their Sixth Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Lutz are celebrating the sixth anniversary of their wedding today. A number of friends have been invited to join them in the festivities this evening.

THE PERRY MURDER AGAIN.

The Body to be Taken Up Again Next Week—Belief That a Mistake Was Made—Theory of Death by Shooting.

Rumors relative to the Perry murder case have been quite numerous the last few days. The "Mules" are taking a deep interest in the affair and every day the announcement is made that the murderer of poor Ed Perry has just been apprehended and his arrest to follow in a few hours. So far all talk has been without foundation. The Mules refuse to divulge any of their so-called secrets. No one knows what the new evidence is they have discovered, but it is a fact that they have a good clue which may develop into much importance. They are now going on the theory that Perry was shot and not killed by a blow on the head as the coroner's decision indicated. In the examination of the body it is said the doctors examined only the head. Witnesses have been found who will testify that they saw a hole in the back of the dead man's coat and that the coat was bloody. No examination was made of the body.

They are any number of people who think a mistake was made in taking up the body of the murdered man. A brother of Ed Perry was killed in a saw mill accident a few weeks before the murder of his brother. They were buried side by side. It is said the doctors did not take up the remains of Ed Perry but those of his brother who was killed in the saw mill accident. These and a number of other doubts will be settled in a few days for arrangements have now been made for another examination of the remains which will be taken up next Wednesday. Dr. Lottridge of this city will conduct the investigation and a most thorough examination will be made in hopes of finding some clue which will throw light on the theory of death by shooting.

Old Folks Reunion.

Captain N. W. Evans is in receipt of a letter from Charles Elmer Rice, of Alliance, O., inviting him to be present at the second annual old folks day to be held Sept. 27th at the home of Mr. Rice, in Alliance. Among those who will be present are Elizabeth Byrnes, aged 103, Perilla Spooner 102, Catharine Hoobler 101, Larketta L. Walker 100, James R. Green 98, Sarah Greenwalt 97 and many others of advanced age.

Had a Small Row.

The Seven Wise Men gave a dance last night on Chillicothe street, a large crowd being present. A little excitement was caused during the evening by a young fellow named John Ward, who refused to allow a young lady against whom he had a grudge enter the dancing hall and wanted to mash the face of her escort. The matter was settled without bloodshed.

Only Ten Cases of Diphtheria.

A case of diphtheria was reported in the family of Amzi Edwards, 273 West Front street. There are only ten cards up in the city, and Health Officer Fulton reports the contagion on the decline. Several of the reported cases were not diphtheria at all, but in order to be safe they have all been placarded.

The West this year, if it has suffered at all, has had too much rain.

Missouri stands 111 in her corn crop. This is the highest rating among the states.

REED is keeping mum, while McKinley is making a show of himself at every opportunity. It will be an opportunity to determine which method will win.

INDIANAPOLIS will win the pennant of the Western League, and the pennant in the Eastern League will lie between the Cleveland and the Orioles.

ROOSEVELT is after Governor Hill. His movements will be watched with interest. He is after big game and may not bag it so easily as he has other game in the past.

THE Kansas City Journal says the South has in the last twelve months gained 800,000 spindles and $15,000,000 in investments. Not bad for the first year under the Wilson bill.

COL. BRADLEY has largely dropped out of the Kentucky canvass. If he couldn't stand up before Col. Hardin, he should have called on Col. Hill Worthington. Hill would never have shown the white feather like his chief.

Our health officers should make every effort possible to confine the diphtheria cases and the immediate family to their homes. The old saying, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, is strictly applicable in this instance. The newspapers should call attention to every case, that such publicity may be given to the cases as will prevent persons from evading their duties as officers or citizens. This is a public matter of importance to all.

THE millers of Pennsylvania met in convention at Philadelphia the other day and passed a resolution asking that congress pass a retaliatory measure against France, Germany and Belgium in consequence of their imposition of a duty on flour. What is sauce for the goose ought to be for the gander. Why should these countries put a duty on flour as long as we put duties on their products. This is the national result of tariff duties and the advocates of a tariff should be the last to whine on account of the effects of their own methods.

AN advertising agent in close contact with all classes of business men tells the New York Times that "during the hard times they were ready to accuse him of throwing their money away. Of late they have been positively delighted to see him and to talk business with him."

Money can be thrown away in good times as well as in bad. Much depends on the style of throw and the direction. Thrown by a master-hand and into a dense constituency, the advertiser's dollar comes back like a return-ball. But even badly thrown it is apt to come back.

WILLIE the Grand Army of the Republic was fraternizing with the southern veterans at Louisville and doing its patriotic part in cementing the bonds of peace between the sections, the redoubtable Foraker, in the Ohio Republican convention, was fighting the war over again from Bull Run to Appomattox. But to do the blatant blatherskite justice, it may be doubted whether in reopening his galling fire upon the enemy he really meant to exterminate anybody. It is rather more likely that he feared extermination himself by the terrible silver question, and was merely firing so that the smoke would serve him as a cloak of concealment.—Philadelphia Record.

WENT BACK

Thomas Esker of Chillicothe Bound on a Globe Trotting Expedition, Turns Back from Here.

Mr. Thomas Esker arrived home today, in answer to a telegram directed to him at Portsmouth. Mr. Esker left for Portsmouth on Monday on his wheel, going by the way of Jackson, and taking the trip by easy stages. He was called back to his duties at the First National bank by the illness of his uncle, Captain Frank Esker. Captain Esker has been given several reminders of his old army troubles, and he thought he had better take it in time, before he would be taken down. Consequently he will be relieved of his duties at the bank and will, tomorrow evening, leave for Oakland, Md., where he will rest up. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Esker.—Chillicothe Gazette.

BICYCLE NOTES.

M. Reviere covered 523 miles and 10:20 yards in twenty four hours on the Hummer bicycle.

When inflating a tire, should the rod rebound from the air pump, the air valve in the tire to which the pump is attached should be examined, as there is probably a leak somewhere, and to continue pumping up the tire is only labor lost.

It seems pretty well agreed that next year tires be larger than those now in use, more tires will be built 1.5-8 and 1.3-4 inches in diameter. It is probable that the bicycles will have larger tubing.

A convenient way of tightening the chain is to unscrew the nuts on the rear hub to allow free moving of the rear upper brace, then to pull the wheel out until the chain is to the desired tightness, then re-tighten the nuts on the rear hub.

A curious bicycle has been invented by a resident of New York City. The pedals, instead of acting on the wheel by means of a chain and sprocket wheel, are practically pump handles and force water to a water wheel attached to the rear wheel of the cycle.

It is stated that the factories which are devoted to bicycle manufacturing in the United States now have a capacity of 500,000 bicycles per annum. Many of the factories have more than doubled the size of the plants within a few months. It is said that the cost of producing a first-class bicycle varies from $85 to $95.

In some places it is proposed to tax bicycles to add to the revenues of the county, and the only reason why they are not taxed is that the board of supervisors or other officers do not care to antagonize the large number of wheelmen who are among their constituents. The reasons advanced for the proposed innovation are that the extensive use of wheels has cut down the business of liverymen and kindred lines, thereby reducing the taxable property to an extent which should be made up by the wheelmen.

It is said that bicycles have seriously injured the sale of pianos in England. W. C. Sanger made a new world's record at Springfield tournament this week by riding a two mile professional handicap in 4:25.3-5.

The latest thing for the army is a cannon mounted on a twin bicycle. The cannon itself is a steel rifled affair 34 inches in length, and weighs 50 pounds, and is swung between the rear wheels, resting upon the connecting axle, and is further supported from above. The caisson containing the ammunition is carried on another duplex. Four artillery men equip a battery. They furnish at once the gun crew and motive power.

It is reported that a septuplette wheel, which is 15 feet 6 inches in length, is now being made in Europe, and will shortly be shipped to this country. Its principal use will be for pacing.

Beware of a clicking sound in your machine. The chances are that it is caused by the balls in a loose bearing, and this demands immediate remedy.

A new record for Great Britain was made at Putney, England, on June 26th, by Mr. Barden, who made a mile in 1:50.2-5.

Several records were lowered at the Springfield meet. Fred Longhead reduced Class A unpaced record of 5:05.2-5 for two miles to 4:50. Starbuck beat the five mile professional record in 10:11.1-5.

FRIGHTENED AT A BICYCLE.

Richard Barry and Daughter Have a Thrilling Runaway on Gallia Street.

Richard Barry and daughter Mame, while out driving last evening, met with a very serious runaway. They were coming down Gallia street when the horse became frightened at a bicycle and started to run away. Mr. Barry was unable to control the animal. When near the high school building the buggy collided with the express wagon, checking the speed of the runaway buggy, which soon collided with a tree in front of Bode's store. Miss Barry jumped out and escaped injury. Mr. Barry was thrown to the pavement, sustaining a fracture of the arm and injuries to his back. Fortunately the accident happened within a few doors of Mr. Barry's home. The horse was a young one from the country, and had only been driven a few times by Mr. Barry.

ITCHING AND BURNING

Six Doctors Could Not Cure.
All Remedies Useless, Despaired Of Ever Being Cured. Tried

CUTICURA REMEDIES

Relief in First Application.
Completely Cured in Three Months.

For five years, I had on both my legs three very bad ulcers, two on one and one on the other just into the bone above the ankle, as large as a five cent piece, which hurt me so much night and day that I could not sleep for the itching and burning. I had to get up three or four times a night. Did not know what to do with myself as I could not work. Called a doctor, but he did me no good, and in all had six of the best doctors I could get, but they could do nothing, and I gave up all hopes of ever getting cured. Nothing was any good, until I tried CUTICURA Remedies. The first application, the itching, burning, and swelling stopped. I kept on with them, and in three months was entirely cured. I am now as vigorous and can prove it by people who I now live. If anyone doubts this, write to me, and I will tell them with the greatest of pleasure what CUTICURA REMEDIES have done.

A Great Difference.
He stood beside the altar,
And his face was grave and sad;
She stood beside the altar,
With a smile both sweet and glad.
But why this awful difference Between the man and maid?
Her clothes were made to order,
While his were ready made.

CHAPTER I.

IN the days of Rudolph the Third there stood on the hill opposite the Castle of Zenda and on the other side of the valley in which the town lies, on the site where the Chateau of Tarlenhelm now is situated, a fine and strong castle belonging to Count Nikolaus of Festenburg. He was a noble of very old and high family and had great estates; his house being, indeed, second only to the royal house in rank and reputation. He himself was a young man of great accomplishments, of a domineering temper and of much ambition; and he had gained distinction in the wars that marked the closing years of the reign of King Henry the Lion. With King Rudolph he was not on terms of cordial friendship, for he despised the king's easy manners and carelessness of dignity, while the king had no love for a gentleman whose one object seemed to be to surpass and outshine him in the eyes of his people, and who never rested from extending and fortifying his castle until it threatened to surpass Zenda. It self both in strength and magnificence.
Moreover Nikolaus, although maintaining a state ample and suitable to his rank, was yet careful and prudent, while Rudolph spent all that he received and more besides, so that the count grew richer and the king poorer. But in spite of these causes of difference, the count was respected at court with apparent graciousness, and no open outbreak of enmity had yet occurred, the pair being, on the contrary, often together and sharing their sports and pastimes with one another.

Now most of these diversions were harmless or indeed becoming and proper, but there was one among them full of danger to a man of hot head and ungar-nered impulse such as King Rudolph was.
And this one was dicing, in which the king took great delight, and in which Count Nikolaus was very ready to encourage him. The king, who was generous and hated to win from men or those who might be playing beyond their means in order to give him pleasure, was delighted to find an opponent whose purse was as long or longer than his own, and thus came gradually to pass many evenings with the king and Nikolaus at the game.
And the more evenings he passed the deeper he fell into the count's debt; for the king drank wine, while the count was content with small beer, and when the king was losing he doubted his stakes, whereas the count took to sell if the wind seemed adverse. Thus always and steady-ly the debt grew; till at last Rudolph dared not to disclose it to his advisers. For he dared not to disclose it to his advisers.
For there were great public burdens already imposed by reason of King Henry's wars, and the citizens of Strelau were not in a mood to bear fresh exactions nor to give the king's gambling debts; in payment of the king's gambling debts; in fact, although they loved the Elphingers well enough, they loved their money more.
Thus the king had no resource, except in his private possessions, and these were of no great value, saving the castle and estate of Zenda.

At length, when they had sat late one night and the throws had gone all the evening against the king and for Nikolaus, the king flung himself back in his chair,
drained his glass, and said impatiently:
"I am weary of the game! Come, my lord, let us end it."

"I would not urge you, sire, a moment beyond what you desire. I play but for your pleasure; my pleasure has been your profit," said the king with a vexed laugh.
"For I believe I am stripped of my last crown. What is my debt?"

The count, who had the whole sum recorded on his tablets, took them out and showed the king the amount of the debt.
"I cannot pay it," said Rudolph. "I would play you again, to double the debt, or wipe it out, but I have nothing of value enough to stake."

The desire which had been nursed for long in the count's heart, now saw the moment of its possible realization. He leant over the table, and, smoothing his beard with his hand, said gently:
"The amount is no more than half the value of your Majesty's castle and demeanor of Zenda."

The king started and forced a laugh.
"Aye, Zenda spoils the prospect from Festenburg, does it?" said he. "But I will not risk Zenda. An Elphinger without Zenda would seem like a man robbed of his wife. We have had it since we have had anything or been anything. I should not seem king without it."

"As you will, sire. Then the debt stands?" And he looked, asking without words, "How will you pay it?" and adding without words, "Paid it must be."
And the king read the unspoken words in the eyes of Count Nikolaus.

The king took up his glass, but finding it empty, he said it angrily on the floor where it shivered to fragments at Count Nikolaus' feet; and he shifted in his chair and cursed softly under his breath. Nikolaus sat with the dice-box in his hand and a smile on his lips; for he knew that the king could not pay, and therefore must play, and he was in the vein and did not doubt winning from the king Zenda and his demesne. Then he would be the greatest lord in the kingdom and hold for his own a kingdom within the kingdom and the two strongest places in all the land.
And a greater prize might then dangle
in reach of his grasp.

"The devil spurs and I gallop!" said the king at last. And he took up the dice-box and rattled it.

"Fortune will smile on you this time, sire, and I shall not grieve at it," said Count Nikolaus with a courteous smile.
"Curses on her!" cried the king. "Come, my lord, a quick ending to it! One throw, and I am a free man, or you are master of my castle."

"One throw let it be, sire, for it grows late," assented Nikolaus with a careless air; and they both raised the dice-boxes and threw. The throw was a six and a five, a sudden gleam of hope lit up his eyes;
he leant forward in his chair, gripping the elbows of it with his hands, and his cheek flushed and his breath came quickly. With a bow Count Nikolaus raised his hand and threw. The king sank back and the count said, with a smile of apology and a shrug of his shoulders:

"Indeed I am ashamed. For I cannot be denied to-night."

For Count Nikolaus of Festenburg had thrown sixes, and thereby won from the king the castle and demesne of Zenda.
And he rose from his chair, and, having buckled on his sword that had lain on the table by him and taken his cap in his hand, stood looking down on the king with a malicious smile on his face. And he said with a look that had more mockery than respect in it:

"Have I your Majesty's leave to withdraw? For ere day dawn, I have matters to transact in Strelau, and I would be at my castle of Zenda to-night."

Then King Rudolph took a sheet of paper and wrote an order that the castle and all that was in it and all the demesne should be surrendered to Count Nikolaus of Festenburg on his demand, and he gave and held out his hand, which Nikolaus kissed, smiling covertly, and the king said with grace and ignity:

"Cousin, my castle has found a more worthy master. God give you joy of it."
And he bowed with his head to be left alone. Then when the count had gone he sat down in his chair again and remained till it was full day, neither moving nor yet sleeping. And there he was found by his gentlemen when they came
to dress him, but none asked him what
had passed.

Count Nikolaus, now lord of Zenda, did not so waste time, and the matters that he had spoken of did not keep him long alone. Then when the morning he sat down in his chair again and remained till it was full day, neither moving nor yet sleeping. And there he was found by his gentlemen when they came
to dress him, but none asked him what
had passed.

"GOD GIVE YOU JOY OF IT."

that Zenda was now his and not the king's. At this they were greatly astonished but they ate the fine dinner and drank the wine which he provided, and in the evening they rode down the hill from his seat to the capital; but nobody could tell the bishop who rode to Zenda, and presently the bishop, wearied with traveling, went to his bed.

To Oligonunk.

The excursion advertised by the C. & O. Ry. for Oligonunk Sept. 15th, is one of the most inviting ever offered to the people of this section. It is but the second such excursion in a year. Not only is the very low-rate attractive, but the entertainment offered is certainly worth the trip. The ride alone is worth more than the fare, the glories of the scenery up the Kinnocoonick and the wonderful intricacies, the strange and beautiful formations in the famous caves are added delights. Such opportunities to ride so economically and visit a noted cave are not so frequent as to be neglected. It is an additional matter of congratulation to both the visitor and the management that it can be confidently said that the restaurant is all that one could wish. Every one who has visited it this season are profuse in the endorsement of the very reasonable charges, the variety and perfect preparation of the viands offered the visitor.

Serious and Alarming Disaster in Bohemia.

—Account of Strange Phenomenon.

A remarkable disaster has occurred in the old German town of Bruix, in northwestern Bohemia, in many respects recalling the recent disastrous earthquake which almost entirely destroyed the town of Laibach, in Carniolia.

On Friday evening, writes the Vienna correspondent of the London Times, the inhabitants of Bruix were alarmed by the sudden extinguishing of the street lamps, and at first it was surmised that an accident had occurred at the gas works. This report, however, spread that a large number of the houses in the Bahnhofstrasse were in imminent danger of collapsing, which was shortly after confirmed and supplemented by the news that the "Anne Shaft," belonging to the Bruix Coal Mining company, in the vicinity of the town, had been completely decided by an jarsh of sand and water. In consequence of the reports the authorities took immediate steps to clear the houses in the Bahnhofstrasse of their inhabitants, and it is owing to the promptness with which precautionary measures were adopted that the subsequent series of disasters was attended by comparatively slight loss of life.

The horror of the situation was greatly increased by the total darkness which prevailed, together with a heavy downpour of rain. The descriptions of the scene which have reached Vienna are heartrending in the extreme, the panic-stricken, half-dazed inhabitants crowding the streets, not knowing in what direction to fly for safety. Early in the morning, in view of the danger which still threatened, the authorities ordered the clearance of the houses in that part of the town which has suffered most severely. Up to the present eighteen houses are in ruins and it is expected that many others will have to be pulled down. The damage is estimated to exceed 1,500,000 florins. In consequence of the breaking of the main gas and water pipes the town is without light and water. The distress which prevails is very great. During the last sitting of the reichsrath the government was called upon to take prompt measures to alleviate the distress, and in view of the magnitude of the disaster to make use of the funds at its disposal for such purposes to assist the sufferers. The money thus expended by the government will be voted during the next session.

Or long winter evenings, there is nothing more cheerful than a grate fire. Of course a good deal depends on the grate, but if you get one of our Improved Grates you have got the best grate that money will buy. Some other grates cost more money, but that does not make them work better.

HIS OWN CHILD

John Bliz Tries to Take It Away from His Wife.

A Kentuckian Who Thought Sixty Cents an Outrageous Price for Two Hair Cuts and a Shave—Fred Stomahorn Goes to Shakespeare for Justice.

John Bliz, an employee of the Brushart Lumber company, was on the war path last night, the object of his wrath being his wife, Mrs. Ella Bliz. John claims that Ella has not been true to him for more than a year past, but has a strong predilection for gentlemen of color—one or two especially. He says she has been meeting one of these colored friends, a well known gentleman connected with one of the saloons on Eleventh street, on the street corners and alleys, and at neighbors' houses and having a gay time generally. John was so disgusted with this state of affairs that after repeated quarrels he left the woman. This was about three weeks ago.

Yesterday he heard that Mrs. Bliz was packing up her goods preparatory to going to Picketon, where her parents live. The couple have two bright little children, and as he thought a great deal of them Mr. Bliz thought he would keep them here. So last night he went to her residence and attempted to carry off the children. One of them got away from him and ran to her mother, but Bliz got away with one child, which he took to a house on Chillicothe street. Mrs. Bliz went for Policeman McFarlin and Mr. Bliz called on Marshall Watkins. Finally Bliz gave up the child. He says that a few days ago he called on Mayor Row and told him all about the trouble, and that the mayor told him he was right in leaving the woman, and should get the children if he could.

The couple came to Portsmouth from Picketon about three weeks ago. Aside from drinking a little occasionally Bliz seems to be a good sort of a fellow.

A Kentuckian by the name of Howell complained bitterly to the mayor that he had been robbed in a barber shop this afternoon. He said he went into a shop on West Second street and was charged 60 cents for two hair cuts and a shave. He thought it outrageous robbery. He said he had traveled in a thousand states and had never heard of a barber charging more than 15 cents for a hair cut. It took several minutes to convince him that Colonel White had not charged him too much.

William Johnson, the colored suspect, was ordered to leave town this morning. He left.

Warren Carter was drunk and disorderly on West Second street last night when arrested by Officer Harding. He paid $1 and costs.

Fred Stomahorn wanted to file charges against Mrs. Robt. Shields but he says the mayor would not listen to him and even threatened to lock him up for saying he could not get justice. Squire Waller would have nothing to do with the case either, so Fred applied to the jovial Shakespeare. Mrs. Stomahorn swore out the warrant charging the Shields woman with slander. The case will be for hearing Monday.

CUT AN ARTERY.

Chas. Blake Accidentally Cuts An Artery in His Wrist While at the Slaughter House.

Chas. Blake, son of T. B. Blake the butcher, accidentally severed an artery in his wrist at the slaughter house Friday evening. We went to stick a beef when the knife slipped, cutting a big gash in his wrist. Drs. Bing and Davidson rendered prompt surgical aid and stopped the flow of blood. He will not be able to use his arm for two or three weeks.

Attention, G. A. R.

WHAT IS IT

That Occupies the Time and Attention of the Grand Jury?

Forty-one Indictments Returned So Far, and They Will Resume Work Monday.

The Session Promises to Be a Record Breaker and Sensational Developments Are Anticipated—Indictments Made Public—Common Pleas Grand and Other Items from the Temple of Justice.

There is no doubt but that the report of the grand jury will contain some sensational developments. At eleven o'clock this morning the jury reported to the court that they were not yet through their work and could not finish this week. Forty-one indictments found so far were turned over to the court and the jury were discharged until Monday morning when they will convene again and resume work. The length of the session and the number of indictments returned so far make it a record breaker. It is very unusual for a grand jury to be in session longer than a week and 41 indictments is an unusually large number. How much longer the session may continue and how many more indictments will be found cannot be told, but the final report will probably be made Monday.

It is generally presumed that the Overturf matter is occupying the attention of the jury and prolonging the session. It is evident that Prosecutor Milnor is making the investigations along all lines thorough and complete, and the report will doubtless contain some liquor selling and gambling indictments, and stir the law breakers up generally.

Of the indictments found so far the following are made public, the persons named being either in custody or under bond.

Mary Ellen McKinney, housebreaker and larceny, breaking into the house of Henry McCall, April 10th.

George Kaffer, recommendation that he be sent to the Boys' Industrial school.

Floyd Colegrove, recommendation that he be sent to the Boys' Industrial school.

One Rickey, shooting with intent to kill Orley Rickey, April 30th.

One Rickey, shooting with intent to kill, wound and maim Alonzo Rickey, April 30th.

Wm. Myers, assault with intent to kill upon Daniel E. Buckley, April 23rd.

Thomas Harder, grand larceny, stealing $150 from Henry Cook April 5th, and $85 from Edward Cook.

Samuel Tate, burglary and larceny, breaking into the store of Levi N. Hyatt, May 24th, and stealing property to the value of $3.

Enos Brown, burglary and larceny, breaking into the store of John Moeller, April 18th, and stealing $150.

Joshua D. Mathiot, burglary and larceny, breaking into the store of the Scioto Fire Brick company, at Sciotoville, July 18th, and stealing goods to the amount of $5.

John Holt, sodomy, having carnal copulation with a cow.

Ben Bert, grand larceny, stealing two head of cattle worth $55 from Henry C. Bradford, August 8th.

Carlos Morton, burglary and larceny, breaking into the shop of Andrew E. Jackson, Dec. 22nd and stealing barber's goods worth $13.50.

Ananias Weeks, adultery with Vinda S. Wanagan.

Edward Jones, slander, by circulating a false report concerning Caroline Emmet, last May.

William Feazel, assault and battery upon John V. McCurdy, April 27th.

George Zornes, assault and battery upon Trustum M. Lynn, May 27th.

John Weatherman, cutting with intent to kill and wound, Lee Startzman, May 12th.

THE COUNTY CASH BOOK.

The payment of grand jury witnesses has kept the county treasurer busy this week. Fortunately business in other departments has been light, the list of orders drawn on the treasury being very small. Following is the list:

G. W. Long, janitor school examiners	$ 3.00
Tribune printing Co., printing	2.00

H. Clay Lanier, school examiner	13.50

WIFE VS. HUSBAND.

Mary G. Goddard has filed two suits in common pleas court against her husband Ariel E. Goddard which indicate that their married life has not been marked by cordial, friendly feelings or sociability. The parties live at Haverhill and although occupying the same house have not spoken to each other for over a year. The wife states in her petition that she inherited a tract of 33 acres of land from her father before her marriage to the defendant in May 1876. She and her husband purchased jointly an adjoining tract of 61 acres in 1884. He took charge of both farms and has been managing them since. He has never accounted for the rents or profits and so on her tract amounts now to about $2,900 and her share in the other tract about $8,000. She asks that he be enjoined from disposing of crops or interfering with her in the management of her property, and to account to her for the rents and property so far accrued.

Floyd McCormick and Harry Ball are plaintiff's attorneys.

THESE ARE HAPPY.

Four unfortunate who have been locked up in the county jail awaiting the investigation of the grand jury into their alleged criminal actions were released this afternoon the grand jury failing to find indictments against them. The fortunate ones are Harry Beyron and Ed Taylor the Tolbert show men charged with cutting Ed Dandridge; Fleming the man who cut Policeman McFarland and Jane Minery who was charged with robbing a stranger of his pocket book. Robbie has become attached to the jail and will probably remain in the service of the sheriff's family who has a great deal of confidence in her.

BURNED A PRISONER'S BED.

Ed Taylor had a narrow escape from being cremated in jail last night. A burning rag fell from the second floor down into his cell, lighting on his bed. He refused to remove it, but let it burn the bed clothes up. He insists that some fellow-prisoner who has it in for him was trying to burn him up.

A DIVORCE GRANTED.

A divorce was granted this morning in the case of John Willis vs. Maud Willis. The husband was also given the custody of the minor children. The parties had agreed as to the alimony and their contract or agreement was approved by the court and made a part of the decree.

THE CIVIL GRIND.

Court adjourned at noon to Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock. Some minor matters were disposed of this morning, and the following docket entries made: Charles Marting et al., executors, vs. Emily Upp et al., sale of part of lot 31 to Eugene C. Lead approved and confirmed, deed ordered.

Wm. Bennett, Jr., vs. Joseph G. Steagall, settled, costs paid, no record. Susie J. Armstrong vs. D. W. Gustin, sheriff, leave to defendant to answer in five days.

L. Newberger & Bro. vs. R. A. Calvert, demurrer to amended petition overruled, leave to answer in seven days.

John T. Miller vs. Margaret Yeager, leave to file demurrer, same filed. Lucretia Snider vs. J. W. Giles et al., leave to amend forthwith.

Autumn Headgear for Ladies

Decorate of Dame Fashion to Her Devotees in Southern Ohio.

Ten minutes in the work room of our millinery department is enough to send the ordinary woman into a fever of enthusiasm over the creations sent us from the center of fashion. In the complete row of hats and bonnets which will be shown in all their glory on Opening Days, Tuesday and Wednesday, September 17 and 18, is given an indication of what the fashionable woman will wear the coming fall and winter.

As a usual thing, at this time of year it is possible to predict what particular style of hat will be most extensively worn during the fall months, but in this instance such is not the case. No particular shape bears off the palm of popularity. In trimmings, feathers, wings and tips, and ribbons will be used in profusion. Our stock represents the very latest and newest creations from Fashion Centers. Many of them are exact copies of hats made by some of the most famous Parisian artists, and it is absolutely impossible to distinguish any difference.
